Because of the storm we had 3 attend. I gave a little demo/ pep talk about "pocket sketching" and we each did a small watercolor sketch from photographs using the very small KOI portable watercolor kits. We started by a critique of a large painting I had done from a small watercolor sketch which was an intro into making a watercolor sketch rather than just a pencil rendering plein air.

We had it set to watch a 24 min video on pocket sketching by Kathy McCauley, but the library TV would not connect with my computer. So next we tried connecting my phone to stream the program on the library TV The TV would not recognize my device. So next we tried streaming it using my laptop computer. About every 10 seconds, the streaming would pause to catch up. So we abandoned the video and talked about what this lady was doing and then followed with each person using the Koi and making a small painting sketch.

We had a drawing and Carol won the pocket watercolor painting sketch book. The whole meeting was done by 6:30 pm. I thought it was fun and it started snowing heavily as we dismissed. The lack of attendance was due to the weather.

I did receive confirmation from Jeannie Millecam who will conduct a 2 day workshop here. Dates and times along with venues will be forth coming after she has a chance to consider what would be best.

I received membership dues from: Mona Woolsey, Megumi Dold, Lori Ransom, Carol Stenger and myself. I will get those monies to Debbie Robb. I also sent those present the calendar you sent me.
